

Abstract

The present invention is directed to a non- ballooning raisable fabric panel that can be easily installed on or uninstalled from a rod, such as a conventional curtain rod. In 5 one embodiment, the panel can be easily installed by sliding a rod through a sleeve positioned at or near the top of the panel. Installation of the present invention is completed without using collateral hardware typically used in installing fabric panels over a window or from a ceiling, for example.

10